

The Rustgill Cluster

Curious and careful, Charlotte meets Vic; a recklessly enthusiastic local who tells her all about the mysterious new house she has just moved into. Vic drags Charlotte up to the Attic where they meet the Attic's self-appointed Officer in Charge Sargent Mousington M. Mouse and his sarcastic friend Trevor the hedgehog.

While poking around among the artifacts in the mysterious attic, Charlotte discovers that a leak in the roof and an unfortunate spill of magic powder causes some innocuous spores in the attic to rise up and become sentient. Charlotte and Vic learn empathy and compromise when they have to parent the naive and enthusiastic little mushroom folk.

The Land Where Dreams Come Rude

Charlotte and Vic find themselves in a very strange part of the Attic where all the old baby toys are kept. They discover a whimsical world of stuffed toys. But these adorable little stuffed critters aren't all that they seem. When the girls become ensnared in a very cute trap, they find that the toys intend to keep them there to play with forever! It's only Charlotte's compassion and understanding that can help the ringleader see the world from a new perspective. But Vic, Trevor and Mousington have a more explosive escape plan in mind.

A Plant out of Water

When a mysterious disappearance occurs among the inhabitants of the Halloween supply closet, a realm where everyone's head is an object, Mousington and Trevor help the girls play the role of detective and piece together what happened with the help of a mysterious, shy, plant-headed outcast.

Fulfilling Mousington's Duties

When Mousington finds himself under the weather and unable to perform his duties, Charlotte and Vic step up and take on his role as the Custodians of the Attic and soon discover that the job is a lot harder than they thought.

A Pug of a Problem

While Charlotte and Vic are babysitting the neighbor lady's pug, Cooper, the wall-eyed canine manages to yeet himself face-first into the attic. Charlotte and Vic journey to save him, but end up in a highly civilized Pet World where Cooper has a job as the city fire hydrant planner, a row house, and is quite the Pug About Town.